THE DRY-PORT VISIT

“Practicality brings the realms of edification and reinforces what the scholarly sages have always known: that the most meaningful form of learning comes from acquiring knowledge and skills based on real world consequences.”

Keeping these words of wisdom in mind, Industry Interaction and Student Activities Committee (IISAC), Department of Commerce, Delhi School of Economics organized the ICD Port Visit (Tughlakabad Port) for the students of MBA-International Business, 1st year. Tughlakabad Port, which is the largest container port in India with its hinterland comprising of all states of Northern and Western India.

The students visited the port on 28th of February and had a short meeting with the officials before dispersal.

One of the officers from the Port accompanied the students on their visit. He explained and elaborated upon the origins as well as the technicalities of the Port.

Students got acquainted with EXIM Cargo, Import Consignment Procedure, Performance of Concor, Cranes and their Operational Purpose. It took around two hours to scout via every nook and cranny of the port and yardhouse.

Students were imparted with real life insightful experiences and most necessarily the details about how the biggest container port of India works and on this note the compelling port visit came to an end.
